Subject areas

According to our manifesto "FSCONS should equally address the following subject areas: society, including, but not limited to, integrity, privacy, freedom of speech, human rights and access to knowledge ; culture, including art, but also covering a broader spectrum of newer cultural expressions ; technology, including software and hardware in a broad meaning, as well as questions of infrastructure and networks."
How would you estimate the balance between those three areas in this year's edition?

Opinions

What did you enjoy the most? What should we definitely keep for next year?

What annoyed you the most? What should we definitely try to change next year?
